

A baby's quilt, easily made

There's probably a very special baby on your list, and if you had the time for quilting, a very special present would be an old-fashioned baby quilt. If, however, you start with an ordinary crib mattress pad of quilted cotton as a base, you can simulate such a quilt in a very charming way.

Directions: Buy 1/2 yard of nursery rhyme chintz and cut out the prettiest figures for appliques. Sew and re-embroider them, by hand, to give dimension. The binding is pink-and- white gingham — or blue-and-white, if that's the story!
